GRAND UNION RALLY AT THE COURT-HOUSE
TODAY.—The Union men of Louisville are invited to rally at the Court-house to-night, when and where they will be addressed by a number of the ablest and most eloquent speakers in the city. Among the number we may mention Nat. Wolf, Esq., Gen. Speed, Gen. Harlan, all of whom, we are assured, will be present, and speak. Let the loyal men of this loyal city turn out by hundreds and by thousands. Let them come in surging masses. We can assure them a feast of statesmanship and a flow of patriotism. Union men! let us all go and pluck our spirits for the glorious work of Monday.

Union men of Louisville! you are on the eve of a civil struggle, the most grave and momentous that ever challenged the energies of freemen! Are you ready? Are you prepared to battle effectually next Monday for your country and to win for her and for yourselves a greater victory than even you have ever won before? You should be. See to it that you are, we conjure you. The struggle of Monday will live imperishably in the annals of the Commonwealth and of the U.S.A. Let it stand on no portion of our people a brighter glory than it sheds on you.

TELEGRAPHIC FEATS OF FALSEHOOD.—The Southern telegraphs are prolific of mischievous inventions. Just before the election of Congressmen in Kentucky, despatches from Memphis announced a great Confederate victory in Bonnville, Missouri. These despatches, which had "just been confirmed" of course, announced that the United States forces had been cut to pieces. Three hundred had been killed, the prisoners were as innumerable as the sands of the sea, General Lyon was among the prisoners, and the steamer latex had been sunk by the resistless batteries of the rebels. No English paper blazoned Waterloo more conspicuously. Yet there was not one word of truth in it. The lie was manufactured to act upon the Kentucky electors.

Another election is about to take place in Kentucky, and the genius of Munchausen is again invoked. The redoubtable Bomharts Furioso, Mr. McCulloch, is announced as the hero of a terrible tale. At the head of 10,000 invincibles he is represented as having attacked 30,000 under Lyon and Sigel, and slaughtered 9,000 of the United States forces. This was the first leap of the telegraphic falsehood, but those careful fellows at Memphis inflated it to the first of January last had been put to the test. The Southern Government, at this early stage of the war, is really reduced to the necessity of establishing such a system of petty mendacity, that it might as well close up its affairs at once and stop off the world.

FOREIGNERS UNDER THE SOUTHERN CONFEDERACY.—Russell, the correspondent of the London Times, says that notwithstanding the fact that the Irish and Germans in the South are "volunteering" in large numbers, various leaders of the Southern rebellion did not hesitate to avail themselves of what Kentucky would represent the central point in the hands of the then rebellion, now the Southern Right party, this beautiful Commonwealth, "the pride of the Union," would have been ere this day precipitated into revolution, and would have been the seat of the common burthen of her people.

This is pitiful to the last degree. Of course the little girls are not to blame, but what is to be thought of their fathers that thus employ their children, and what of the Southern Confederacy that thus employs the fathers?

RISING FUNDS FOR THE SOUTHERN CONFEDERACY.—We have spoken of the various debts, big and little, resorted to in the South for raising means to prosecute the war. Such as we have spoken of, embracing appeals to the women for their silver spoons and their finger-rings, and calls upon the men for various kinds of produce, would seem to indicate the last extremity of financial desperation.

But we just heard of a new mode of operation, got up, no doubt, under the auspices of the Southern leaders. At the head of 10,000 invincibles he is represented as having attacked 30,000 under Lyon and Sigel, and slaughtered 9,000 of the United States forces.
